While the discussion and drawings have shown a square cornered pocketbook, which would be a rectangle or square, the device is not so limited. FIGURE 10 illustrates a variant on the shape, namely round. If desired the spindle opening 16 can be painted a contrasting color or black or left such that the substrate surface shows through, as may be desired. FIGURE 12 illustrates a closeup of the closure of the purse shown in FIGURE 10. See designator 54.

FIGURE 14 illustrates the fact that the two handles can be made adjustable in size by using conventional buckles adapted for that purposed. Thus the woman can have a short or long-handled pocketbook as may be desired. The adjustable straps are designated 35A and 37A respectively.
